You will work in a small team under the Design Authority, responsible for supporting E2E performance engineering across the solution. End-to-end system performance is a key objective for the programme.

Responsibilities:

- Implement a telco package solution for a major UK operator to support a high workload and challenging SLA's
- Review component designs to validate that the workload and SLA requirements have been adjusted from the enterprise view in the contract to a component view for design.
- Review application and infrastructure/deployment designs to identify performance or scalability risks or issues. Gain technical understanding of component solutions and the cloud environment where they are deployed. Recommend mitigation e.g. improvements to the solution design or process.
- Support component teams to produce performance models (capacity and latency) to understand performance across the E2E solution.
- Work with component teams to validate performance testing strategy and proposed environment specification and tooling. Validate and assess performance test execution.
- Support status and risk reporting to the Design Authority

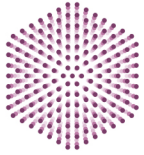

Essential Skills Required:

- Performance engineering, large-scale enterprise solutions, high workload solutions

Preferred Skills Required:

- Telco, Retail and Cloud experience

This role is an immediate requirement and rates will be highly competitive along with opportunity to work on a long term engagement (12 Months +).
